

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION

This chapter is the conclusion of the study. It consists of the result of the analysis. Furthermore, the writer takes theme of the poems as the topic of the study. Because theme is very interesting to be analyzed. Beside that, theme is the central idea and the important part of the poetry. Without theme we will face the difficulty to know and understand what is the content of the poetry itself.

Being aware of this problems, the writer tries to conduct this study in order to know the themes which exist in William Wordsworth's poems. The title of the poems are She Dwelt Among the Untrodden Ways (Lucy), She Was a Phantom of Delight, and I Travelled Among Unknown Men.

From this analysis, the writer knows about William Wordsworth's life. He makes his debut in 1787. William Wordsworth poems expressed through the beauty of nature. Most of his poem tell that nature is a symbol of beauty, happiness and morality. It is same with the reality, all of people have the experience, problem and emotional in their lives. Beside that, Wordsworth aim is to draw his spiritual development in terms of relationship with nature. For that reason, the writers several poems, including the enigmatic " Lucy " poems. William Wordsworth is influenced a lot by Lucy. It can be prove by reading the stated poems above. The existence of Lucy is described clearly in Lucy.

Next, the writer can study about " theme ". As it is stated earlier, the theme is the central idea where something is derived from, as a basic and as a place of all subject matters. Sometimes, theme talks about the problem of life, the way of life, or the comment of life. All subject matters and materials come from theme.

Further, the writer can make the theme of William Wordsworth's poems which have titles : She Dwelt Among the Untrodden Ways (Lucy), She Was a Phantom of Delight, and the last is I Travelled Among Unknown Men. That poem talks about Lucy's condition. That poems tell about Lucy's suffering. Because three of them have close relationship. They are related each other. In these poem Lucy describes as a poor girl. A girl full of suffering. Her life is so sad. But, after Lucy's death, all of people keep thinking about her. Beside that there is someone who admires Lucy very much. He brings his love goes around the world. Finally, he realizes that Lucy is so admirable. And it makes him fights to get Lucy's love.

After the writer knows the themes of that poems one by one. Now, the writer wants to know the similarities and the differences themes of the three poems. The similarities themes among three poems above is about suffering. That is Lucy's suffering. Moreover, the differences themes among three poems, the theme of the first poem " She Dwelt Among the Untrodden Ways (Lucy) is about Lucy's suffering when she is still alive until she is dead. The theme of the second poem " I Travelled Among Unknown Men " is about someone's love to get Lucy's love. The theme of the third poem is about Lucy's destiny.

So, the writer concludes that literature is the way to get entertainment. We cannot live without entertainment. There are many ways to get entertainment. So does poetry, by this we can express our feeling and emotion. The people like a death man if they cannot express their feeling and emotion. Beside that, we have to remember that imagination is different with reality. Imagination contains the beautiful things, as if we can reach, all of our dreams and hopes with imagination. But, we live in the real life. In real life need a struggle. A struggle against our obstacles. We can reach our dreams with the help of God. God determines all of things. Life comes from God and back to the God too. Because our destiny depend on The God's Hand. Therefore, we must dare enough, to make a decision. Because we do not know what will happen in the future.
